

Exalted Reincarnated Nocturnals

Introduction

Character Creation

The Nocturnal gains access to the Supernatural Abilities of Time, Luck, Paradox. The Nocturnal gains an additional Favored Ability that must be placed in one of these Supernatural Abilities.

Fluctuations By spending a Strife Point, the Nocturnal may temporarily alter the world in a way that still obeys the laws of physics. This change should focus on one aspect of the scene that is different, such as “What would this village look like if a historical event happened differently”, or “What if this city had a lake”.

This change follows the same rules and logic as if it were a Project no more than 10PR in cost, and must follow the Rules of Anachronism. This change lasts for One Day, before reality snaps back into place.

Renewal On dying, and by spending a Strife Point, the Nocturnal vanishes from the scene to another location they might have been at. They then start a Day-long process of reincarnation into a possibility of who they might have been. While they will have the same memories, their personality, physical appearance, and gender might all change

If they are again killed during this renewal process, they will truly die.

Caste

Nebula

Spend a Strife Point. Your Anima banner expands around you like a fog, up to (Essence x5) meters in radius. Those you choose who stand who become suffused in it suffer -1 success on all Mental rolls. On specifically perception rolls, they suffer -2 successes.

Supernatural Abilities

Time

The endless river of time cannot be changed, but it can be altered, manipulated, and used for the benefit of the Exalt.

The powers of time may be used to manipulate the speed of actions, skip between near-events, and peer into the past or future for advantage.

Rules of Anachronism

- Life and Death cannot be changed
- Changes may only affect those with an (Essence) score less than the Nocturnal.
- Changes to the past are tricks, and will always snap back to the way they were. However, effects caused by the altered past during the scene will remain.
- Changes must always follow the rules of possibility, and while improbable, must still follow the rules of physics.

Luck

[[Luck is the power of....luck. It's pretty self-explanatory]].

Chance Die

Luck often relies on Chance Die for their effects

Paradox

Paradox is the holding of two contradictory possibilities at the same time, as well as reversing cause and effect.

Strife Expression

Nocturnal Luck

Spend a Strife Point, and select a Favored Ability. For the remainder of the scene, whenever rolling with that Ability, do so twice, and take the preferred result.

Great Curse

Nocturnals are plagued by Consequences of Meddling. Their Primary Favored Supernatural Ability will often lash back in inopportune ways. They may be forced to skip through Time, suffer from bad luck, or find themselves trapped in a paradoxical consequence of their action.

Charms

Familiar Face Confusion

Cost: 5m

Type: Primary; Scene

Mins: Deception 1, Luck 1

By chance, the Nocturnal is confused for another in a way that is beneficial to the Nocturnal. This may either be by being mistaken for a rank of an organization, or a specific person.

This may grant one temporary dot in a Merit such as Ally, Resources, or Influence, or it may be as simple as being granted entry into a closed party.

This charade lasts as long as the Nocturnal as Motes committed, until the scene ends, or if the actual person/member of an organization the Nocturnal is confused for shows up.

Sometimes Apples Fly

Cost: 4m

Type: Reflexive (Scene)

Mins: Athletics 3, Paradox 3

The Nocturnal cuts their bonds with the reality that exists, and instead tethers their bonds to the pull of the Night Sky.

Gravity for the Nocturnal is inverted and allows them to fall upwards, at their choice. Fall damage still applies.

Dual Face Observation

Cost: 3m

Type: Primary

Mins: Paradox 2, Awareness 2

You may observe a person, or specific point from two places (that you could normally access) at the same time.

You may use this to place a “sentinel self” to watch guard while your “true self” is performing normal tasks.

Improbable Response

Cost: 3m

Type: Reflexive

Mins: Athletics 2, Paradox 1

A thousand possibilities flash before the Nocturnal’s form, allowing them to predict an attack and move out of the way.

Reduce damage from an incoming attack by (Essence).

Greater Charm

---

Mind of the Mad Genius

Cost: 5m

Type: Primary (Scene)

Mins: Luck 4

A plan so daring, so implausible, so inefficient, and verging on madness comes to Nocturnal.

The Player describes a plan so implausible, so dangerous, so inefficient that it seems madness to even embark upon it.

And yet, should the proposed plan be carried through, the strategy will work.

Rolls taken to further this strategy get a reroll.

Martial Arts

Duality of Position Style

Light Armor or Unarmored, Unarmed or Light

Abilities: Stealth, Paradox

The Martial Artist knows that the reality of position is malleable, and more than one possibility exists.

When they enter this Form, the Stylist summons an alternate version of themselves up to one range band away from their position. This visage of themselves is called their “Shadow Copy,” which is a hazy visage of their form cloaked in the fractured light of the alternate reality. It gains +2 automatic successes on all stealth rolls during combat

Whenever the Stylist takes a Move action, the shadow copy may also take a Move action of the same type, but in a different direction.

As well, Instead of taking a move action, the Stylist may choose to swap places with their shadow copy.

Lesser Techniques

Collapsed Waveform

Cost: 3m

Type: Supplemental; Scene

Mins: Stealth 1, Paradox 1

When the Stylist and their Shadow copy make a move action, they need not cross the intervening space. Rather they entwine the possible where they are already at their target location, and confuse reality into resolving them into the desired location—which still must be possible for them to reach in one action.

They make no footfalls to hear, for there are none to be made. They disturb no traps, and portals such as doors remain unopened.

Unresolved Duality

Cost: 1m

Type: Supplemental

Mins: Stealth 3, Paradox 2

The Stylist halfway transitions with their shadow copy. While making a Flurry attack, they may attack any and all targets within reach of both their original position and their shadow copy.

Uncertain Direction Attack

Cost: 4m, 2i

Type: Supplemental (Decisive)

Mins: Stealth 4, Paradox 3

While making an attack in the same turn after swapping positions with their shadow self, the Stylist strikes at their befuddled and confused target, granting +(Essence) dice to their attack. As well, the attack will target Soak.

Greater Techniques

Vanishing Act

Cost: 5m

Type: Reflexive

Mins: Stealth 4, Paradox 4

Upon being hit, the Stylist may reflexively swap places with their shadow copy, dividing the total damage of the attack in half.

The Stylist will take the position of their shadow copy, and the copy dissolves upon being struck, reforming on a spot next to the Stylist on their next action.